A LIVELY WEEKLY NEWSPAPER AT HISTO

VOLUME 85 - NUMBER 23 APPOMATTOX (VA.) - 24522 -- TIM

Father Darkleaf

BY CALVIN ROBINSON

All quiet on the Martha Street front, this Memorial Day, '76. A drive around town showed many places with the Flag flying in tribute to those who served our Nation in time of peril. 'Tis a Grand Old Flag Long May She Wave.

Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Harvey, from down Prospect way. Came by Sunday to share "some eats from the garden." Onions, garden peas, etc. Some of the onions were boiling size and I am fond of boiled onions. Also thanks for the comment that I must "keep on writing your column."

* * *

Mrs. Rachel Coleman Totty, of Wilson, N.C., is a Times-Virginian reader and wrote to Brightleaf about her picture in last week's issue. Also to remind me that the violets in my yard which have managed to survive inadvertent lawn-mowing were brought to me from Carolina by the Tottys. So true and will do as she writes, "give them a chance!"

* * *

My friend, Bill Vaughan came up and did my lawn mowing during the week end, and I proclaim him a splendid worker. About a two-hour job, for I have scads of shrubs and such to make it a bit tedious. Have planted most of my modest garden space and the remaining seed will likely end up in a row of succotash.

* * *

Welcomed visitors Monday morning on Martha Street, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Evans, of the D.C. area. Bill was with The Times-Virginian for several years and is a senior employee of The Washington Post. Mrs. Evans hails from Luray, Va. In the early 1950's, Bill took over The Times-Virginian for several weeks and ran it while Brightleaf and I traveled to California and I treasure him as a long-time friend.

Possessed of scant merits as a gardener, I have my own theory when it comes to using the garden hoe. At early stages of emergence, I cannot tell what's what, so my decision is . . . if it is in a row do not chop. Weeds and such tend to irregular patterns. Maybe I should say, "In a Row, let it Grow."

* * *

Although I listen and read everything available about politics and public affairs, I have never been called on for an expression of opinion by any of the big polls of public opinion. But, heavens to Betsy I have a letter from a would-be candidate asking me what I think about a wide variety of issues. I may or may not reply, for most of the questons are tough ones and a yes or no answer is a judgment call which events might change. Chicken?

* * *

On one issue, I am bold, however. When wasps and roaches and insects invade 205 Martha Street, I fetch my trusty swatter and send'em along to their happier hunting grounds in the sky. Put several into orbit this morning.

* * *

Seemed to me that Appomattox did all right over the Memorial Day week end. Guests at our motor courts, guests at our restaurants, guests at our historical shrine, and it was a nice week end.

* * *

My college graduating class was 1926. Fifty years, and I have received a certificate which I will frame, naming me a member of the Frederic W. Boatwright Society of Alumni. Dr. Boatwright was President of University of Richmond for many years.

Thanks for reading and seeya next week. Keep Appomattox "A Growing Town."

Secondary Road System Sets Allocations

Distribution of $113,048,783 for construction and maintenance on Virginia's 43,000-mile secondary road system in the fiscal year which will begin July 1 was announced today by the State Department of Highways and Transportation.

It's an increase of nearly $10,000,000 over the sum for the current fiscal year, but is about a million dollars below the level contemplated in the state's 1972-82 road and street improvement program because state road use tax revenue has fallen below estimates.

Appomattox County, a part of the Lynchburg District, will receive $665,759 state funds, distributed in accordance with applicable laws, plus $145,817 federal funds and state matching or equivalent, a total of $811,576 for the secondary road system in our county.

As in the past, by far the larger part of the secondary system consists of the local roads in 93 counties and the part of the City of Suffolk which formerly was Nansemond County. The two other counties, Arlington and Henrico, maintain, operate, and improve their own local roads, and receive direct payments from the Highway and Transportation Department for that purpose.

The total funds are distributed among the counties by a method taking into account such factors as land area, population, road mileage, vehi-

Daniel Urged Tobacco Industry To Take Positive Approach

RALEIGH - Fifth District Congressman Dan Daniel recently urged the tobacco industry to take a positive approach in combatting what he called "unfair attacks" by government and private agencies.

The Virginia Congressman, speaking to the 30th annual meeting of the Flue-cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. here, said "it is ironic that in this Bicentennial year, the nation's first crop (dating back to Jamestown) is being threatened as never before."

The lines, he said, "have been clearly drawn -- the array of anti-tobacco forces is considerable."

In Congress, through executive agencies, in Federal regulatory commissions and elsewhere, Daniel asserted "unprecedented assaults" are
